In 1883, a creative engineer named John Roobling was inspired by an idea to build to spectacular (very impressive) bridge connecting New York with the Long Island. However bridge building experts throughout the world thought that this was an impossible feat and told Roobling to forget the idea. It just could not be done. It was not practical. It had never been done before.

Roobling could not ignore the vision he had in his mind of this bridge. He thought about it all the time and knew deep in his heart that it could be done. He just had to share the dream with someone else. After much discussion and persuasion he managed to convince his son Washington, an up and coming engineer, that the bridge in fact could be built.
